

Handwritten text on a torn strip of paper, oriented vertically. The text is written in a cursive script and appears to be a list or notes. The characters are difficult to decipher but seem to include names and possibly dates or locations. The strip is attached to the left page of an open book.

Large handwritten characters, possibly '時' (time) and '記' (record), written vertically on the left page of the book.

The right page of the book is mostly blank, with some faint, illegible markings or ghosting of text from the reverse side. The page is otherwise empty.